Data Protection Guidance: Use of Photographs

This guidance covers all photos of people taken for during community events. Personal Data Photos and images of individuals taken may be classified as personal data and are therefore regulated by the Data Protection Act 2018. If the image can be used to identify someone and tell you something about them it is likely that the Information Commissioner will consider it to be personal data. The following examples will help to identify the things that you need to consider:

Photos of specific individuals/groups

Where a photo is clearly of an individual or group of individuals who are the focus of the image this is treated as personal data and consent is required to use the image. Although the Data Protection Act does not specify that consent should be in written format it is strongly recommended that you obtain written consent so that you can keep a copy of the agreement for future reference.

TTS has the right to use the images, video of the participants from the TTS hosted events in websites and other promotional material and social media tools for which it may be suitable.

Children

Although the Data Protection Act does not specify an age limit where images of children are being taken it is important to notify TTS if any objection raised by the child's parent/guardian.

Your Rights

You have the following rights related to your personal data:

- The right to request a copy of personal information held about you
- The right to request that inaccuracies be corrected
- The right to request us to stop processing your personal data
- The right to withdraw consent
- The right to lodge a complaint with the Information Commissioner's Office or Fundraising Regulator
